

- Dating back to the late 19th century, DIN (Deutsches Institut für Normung) is the original 'industrial strength' sans-serif typeface. Initially created to identify railroad cars, DIN became the standard typeface for highway signage, house numbers, and engineering applications for decades.
- It wasn't, however until the late 1980s, however, that DIN gained significant popularity among graphic designers.

FOUNDRY

FF DIN® FontFont
DIN® Next Monotype

DESIGNER

Akira Kobayashi
Albert-Jan Pool
Sandra Winter

CLASSIFICATION

Square Sans

FAMILY

Aa

municipality of Haarlemmermeer

SCHIPHOL

Europe's third busiest and the world's eleventh busiest limit of 500,000 flights a year

all facilities are located under a single roof

WHAT TO LOOK FOR IN FONTS THAT PAIR WELL WITH DIN NEXT

- The DIN typeface design is available from multiple font foundries. Although there are slight variations among the various DIN font families, they share essentially the same design.
- The guidelines are applicable to all versions of the DIN typeface – except the slab serif designs.
- DIN is generally considered a display typeface. Only the light weights, in large sizes, are recommended for blocks of copy.

DIN DISPLAY PAIRING WITH TEXT FONTS

DIN Display

DIN® Next Slab

The quick brown fox jumped over the lazy dog who yawns and quizzically examines paws with great excitement, zipping jacket.

DIN Display

Walbaum

The quick brown fox jumped over the lazy dog who yawns and quizzically examines paws with great excitement, zipping jacket.

DIN Display

Neue Swift®

The quick brown fox jumped over the lazy dog who yawns and quizzically examines paws with great excitement, zipping jacket.

DIN DISPLAY PAIRING WITH TEXT FONTS

DIN Display

ITC Berkeley Old Style

The quick brown fox jumped over the lazy dog who yawns and quizzically examines paws with great excitement, zipping jacket.

DIN Display

ITC Souvenir®

The quick brown fox jumped over the lazy dog who yawns and quizzically examines paws with great excitement, zipping jacket.

DIN Display

Palatino® Nova

The quick brown fox jumped over the lazy dog who yawns and quizzically examines paws with great excitement, zipping jacket.